

FOR KAT — WITH LOVE

Kat, I Built This Around You

An anniversary presentation — 19 July 2026

13 — ANNIVERSARY PRESENTATION: "KAT, I BUILT THIS AROUND YOU"

(Directive Round 21 — full copy for 28 slides)

Tone guardrails (locked, per red-team Round 19 #9): lead with the realistic scenario, not the $1M ceiling. Every "James's role" mention stays framed as an offer of support, never control. This is a gift and an invitation, not an assignment.

- 1. COVER - Title: "Kat, I Built This Idea Around You" - Subtitle: A gift for our anniversary — 19 July 2026 - Visual: warm, romantic studio-light photo of a makeup brush beside a handwritten note (see 05_BRAND_GUIDE.md prompt #9) - Layout: full-bleed image, centered serif title, generous whitespace - Speaker notes: Open warmly. This isn't a business pitch — it's a love letter with a plan attached.
- 2. ANNIVERSARY MESSAGE - Title: Happy Anniversary - Subtitle: (personal message from James — placeholder for him to write in his own words) - Body: "Before anything else — I love you, and watching you build a life around something you're this good at has been one of my favourite things this year." - Visual: soft portrait or couple photo - Layout: centered text, minimal - Speaker notes: Let this land as genuine before moving to the idea.
- 3. WHY KAT INSPIRED THIS - Title: You Already Do This - Subtitle: Twelve years, hundreds of faces, and a gift for teaching - Body: "I've watched people ask you to teach them for years. You already say yes, one person at a time. I wanted to build the version of that, that could reach more people — and give you something that's fully yours." - Visual: collage of Kat's real portfolio work - Layout: image grid left, text right - Speaker notes: Reference specific real memories James has of watching her teach or work.
- 4. THE CUSTOMER PROBLEM - Title: The Gap Nobody's Filling - Subtitle: Free tutorials or $5,000 colleges — nothing in between, and nobody teaching the business side - Body: bullet points from doc 02's customer problem section - Visual: simple two-column comparison graphic - Layout: icon + text pairs
- 5. THE OPPORTUNITY - Title: What Only You Can Teach - Subtitle: Bridal. Editorial. Festival. SFX. The Australian business of makeup. - Body: "Nobody else combines what you actually know how to do with what you've actually lived — running a real freelance beauty business in Australia." - Visual: skill-breadth graphic (radial icons: bridal/editorial/SFX/business)
- 6. HERO PRODUCT CONCEPT - Title: Kathryn K Academy - Subtitle: Real training from a working artist - Body: three-tier ladder overview (names + one-liners) - Visual: three product cards
- 7. PRODUCT FEATURES - Title: What Each Course Actually Delivers - Subtitle: — - Body: curriculum highlights per tier (from doc 03) - Visual: module checklist graphic
- 8. PRODUCT-USE VISUAL - Title: What It Looks Like In Motion - Subtitle: — - Body: description of a student's journey through a module - Visual: concept mockup of a course video interface (prompt #3 in doc 05)
- 9. BRAND OPTIONS - Title: We Looked At 20 Names - Subtitle: — - Body: top 5 shortlist table from doc 05 - Visual: name cards
- 10. RECOMMENDED BRAND - Title: Kathryn K Academy - Subtitle: Because it's already yours - Body: rationale — reuses her existing audience, handle, and reputation - Visual: wordmark concept

11. LOGO DIRECTION - Title: A Mark Worth Being Proud Of - Subtitle: — - Body: description of primary wordmark + KK monogram - Visual: logo concept renders (doc 05 prompts #1–2)

12. BRAND COLOURS - Title: The Palette - Subtitle: Warm, premium, unmistakably you - Visual: colour swatch strip (Ink Black, Warm Ivory, Copper-Rose, Deep Teal, Blush)

13. PACKAGING - Title: Even the Digital Details Are Considered - Subtitle: — - Body: certificate design direction, future physical packaging direction - Visual: packaging concept render (doc 05 prompt #11)

14. CUSTOMER PROFILES - Title: Who You'd Be Teaching - Subtitle: "Aspiring Aimee" and "Working Wendy" - Body: two customer profile summaries from doc 02 - Visual: two profile cards

15. WHY CUSTOMERS WOULD BUY - Title: The Honest Reasons People Would Say Yes - Subtitle: — - Body: value props mapped to each segment - Visual: benefit checklist

16. CONTENT OPPORTUNITY - Title: You Already Have the Audience - Subtitle: 9,800+ people already watching - Body: platform audit highlights from doc 02 - Visual: platform icons + follower count

17. KAT'S POTENTIAL ROLE - Title: What This Could Look Like For You - Subtitle: Only what you want it to be - Body: "You'd be the face, the teacher, the reason people trust this. Content, teaching, community — the parts that use your actual gift. Nothing here works without you wanting it." - Visual: soft portrait - Speaker notes: Emphasize choice — this is an offer she can shape or decline.

18. JAMES'S POTENTIAL ROLE - Title: What I'd Handle - Subtitle: So you don't have to - Body: "Strategy, the numbers, the systems, the boring-but-important stuff — so you can just teach." - Visual: simple icon list

19. LEAN LAUNCH PLAN - Title: Starting Small, On Purpose - Subtitle: No big risk, no inventory, no pressure - Body: validation-first approach summary - Visual: simple funnel graphic

20. FIRST PROTOTYPE - Title: The First Real Step - Subtitle: A single paid workshop, then a founding course - Body: micro-workshop + founding cohort concept from doc 04/11 - Visual: timeline graphic

21. BUDGET - Title: What This Actually Costs to Try - Subtitle: Under $800 to know if it works - Body: Budget 1 summary table from doc 06 - Visual: budget bar chart

22. PRICING - Title: What the Courses Would Cost - Subtitle: — - Body: three tier prices - Visual: price comparison vs. competitors (from doc 02)

23. REVENUE SCENARIOS - Title: What's Realistic — and What's Possible - Subtitle: Leading with the real number, not the dream number - Body: Scenario 1–2 shown prominently; Scenario 4 shown small, labelled "if lightning strikes" - Visual: 4-bar scenario chart, Scenario 1–2 visually emphasized - Speaker notes: Per Round 19 correction — do not let the $1M figure dominate this slide.

24. 90-DAY ROADMAP - Title: The First 90 Days - Subtitle: — - Body: phase summary from doc 11 - Visual: horizontal timeline

25. LONG-TERM ECOSYSTEM - Title: Where This Could Go - Subtitle: — - Body: ladder → membership → workshops → future physical product line (Lash Lock, Year 2) - Visual: ecosystem diagram

26. RISK AND VALIDATION - Title: How We'd Know It's Working — Honestly - Subtitle: — - Body: GO/IMPROVE/PIVOT/STOP rules, summarized plainly - Visual: simple decision-tree graphic

27. FINAL RECOMMENDATION - Title: Go After Validation - Subtitle: — - Body: verdict summary from doc 12, in plain language - Visual: single confident statement graphic

28. HEARTFELT FINAL MESSAGE - Title: Whatever You Decide - Subtitle: — - Body: "This is yours to take, shape, change, or set aside entirely. I built it because I believe in what you already do — not to add pressure to it. Happy anniversary. I love you." - Visual: same warm studio-light image as the cover, or a personal photo -

Layout: centered, quiet, no logos or numbers — just the message - Speaker notes: End here. Let it be quiet.

14 — FOUNDER LETTER TO KAT

(Draft — James should personalise freely; this is a starting point, not a script to read verbatim.)

Kat,

Happy anniversary. Before you read another word of what's attached to this — I need you to know that this started as something much simpler than a business plan. It started with me watching you work.

I've watched you get up before dawn to do a bride's makeup and stay calm when everything around you wasn't. I've watched you teach a friend a technique in fifteen minutes that they'd been trying to get right for years. I've watched people ask you, over and over, "can you teach me?" — and I've watched you say yes, one person at a time, for over a decade, on top of everything else you already do.

So I started wondering: what if that yes could reach further, without costing you anything you don't want to give?

What's in this package is the answer I came up with — researched properly, not just imagined. It's an idea for turning what you already know how to do into something that's fully, structurally yours: a business built around your name, your skill, and your voice. Not a side project bolted onto your real work — a real, considered plan, with real numbers, real research into what's already out there, and an honest account of what would need to be true for it to work.

I want to be upfront about a few things, because I respect you too much not to be:

I put myself down as the person handling the legal and financial setup at the start — not because I want control over something that's built on you, but because someone has to hold that administrative weight while it's new, and I didn't want that to land on you before you'd even said yes to the idea. If you want in, the very first thing we do properly — before a single dollar of real revenue shows up — is sit down and put a real, fair, written agreement in place. Not a handshake. Something that actually protects you, in writing, because your name and your face are the most valuable things in this plan, and that deserves to be treated with real weight, not assumed.

I also want to be honest about the numbers. There's a version of this that does very well — and there's a version, if a lot of things go right at once, that does spectacularly well. I've put both in here, clearly labelled, because I never want you to feel like I've oversold you a fantasy. The real plan is the modest one. Everything past that is a bonus, not a promise.

And most of all — this is yours to take or leave. You can take the whole thing, take pieces of it, change the name, change the price, change the entire shape of it, or tell me it's not for you at all. None of that changes anything about how much I believe in what you already do, with or without a business attached to it.

I love you. Happy anniversary.

James